Bethel voters OK ambulance barn upgrade, road relocation

Indian casino rejected

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Bethel voters Tuesday overwhelmingly approved spending up to $150,000 to rehabilitate and expand the town's ambulance barn.

The second time proved lucky for the project, which had been defeated in an earlier townwide vote.

In June, at Town Meeting, 314 residents voted to go ahead with the upgrade, while an equal number voted not to. The tie in this case counted as a defeat.

But at the strong urging of selectmen Reggie Brown and Don Bennett, the matter was put back before voters at Tuesday's statewide referendum.

As expected, a controversial Indian casino proposal on the statewide ballot drove up voter participation, and the tide of voters helped carry the day for the ambulance barn project.

This time around almost twice as many voters turned out, and while nearly as many as in June voted against the project (285), far more (862) voted for it.

Voters also easily passed a proposal to spend up to $8,000 to relocate the intersection of Taylor-Smith Road and Route 26.

Supporters of the proposal argued that moving the start of Taylor-Smith Road 600 feet to the west on Route 26 would increase safety, and that by doing so now (with nearby landowners willing to cover part of the cost of the project) the town would save money.

Opponents were skeptical of the safety argument and concerned about the precedent set by the town spending money to facilitate access to properties owned by developers.

Gramp's shows are sure bus stoppers

By ALISON ALOISIO

Sometimes Roger Conant dons a mask. Sometimes he puts a stuffed animal in a tuxedo. Sometimes, if no other inspiration strikes him, he simply holds his tiny dog, Bandi, up to the window.

Whatever his choice, Conant, who lives in Bethel, does something every morning to bring a smile to the faces of the youngsters who ride by his house on the school bus.

He's been at it for three years now, ever since his grandson, Lance, started kindergarten at Crescent Park Elementary School.

Lance, who lives in Albany, rides Brenda Blaisdell's bus. The bus goes right by Grandpa Roger's house on Mill Hill in Bethel.

A few days into Lance's kindergarten career, said Roger, "when they went up by, I thought I'd do something (to entertain Lance)."

Lance keeps many stuffed animals at his grandparents' home. So Roger held one of the animals up to his kitchen window to wave to Lance as he went by.

From there, said Roger, "It just kept growing. The other kids enjoyed it, too."

Blaisdell quickly got into the habit of slowing down next to the Conant's house, as the children waited expectantly. "The kids really look forward to it," she said.

The challenge for Roger is to keep coming up with new

Bethel filmmaker documenting Bryant Pond's yanked crank system

By ALISON ALOISIO

The Bryant Pond crank phone system is soon to be the subject of a new television documentary.

The system, the last of its kind in North America, has had plenty of publicity before — much of it in the form of TV news bites as customers fought to keep it.

They had a great battle cry: "Don't Yank the Crank," but their battle was against the tide of technological evolution — in 1983 the cranks were yanked, and replaced by a more modern system.

Replaced, but not forgotten, and now filmmaker Larry Young has set out to capture the history and the small-town culture that produced it.

Young is a freelance producer, editor and cameraman who has done film material for a wide variety of clients, including NBC and ABC News, Dateline, 20/20, 60 Minutes and ESPN.

His company, Best Shot Productions, was based in Boston until he and his family moved to the Bethel area about a year ago. They had been coming to ski for more than a decade, and decided to make this their permanent home when their daughter enrolled at Gould Academy.

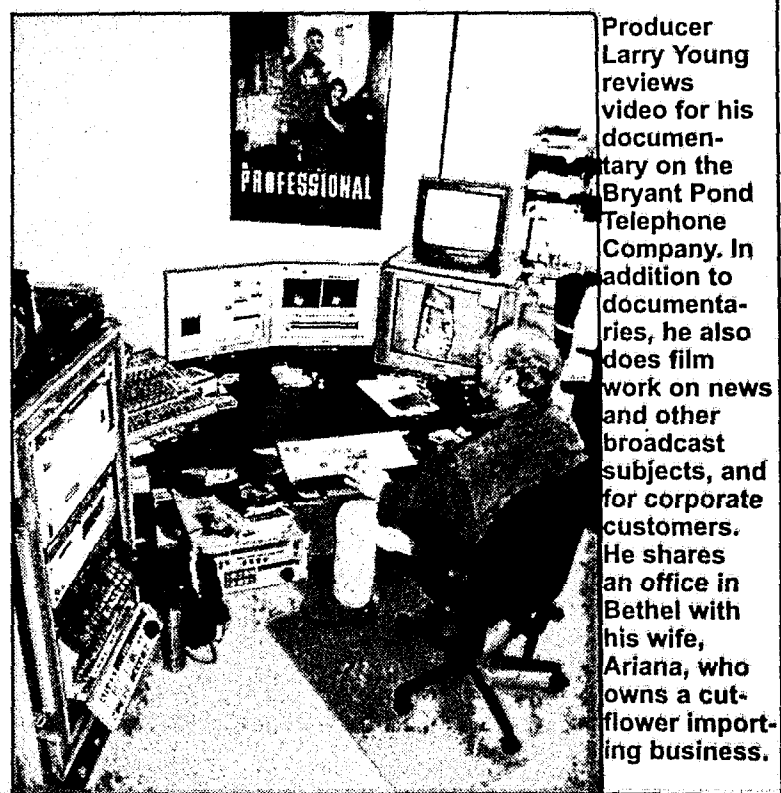

Young's film company is now based at the Stone Mountain Mortgage building on Main Street in Bethel.

Once established here, Young started thinking seriously about a Bryant Pond Telephone Co. film.

"I was familiar with the story long before we got here," said Young. He had heard about it through friends at the broadcast networks, and later, through local people in Bryant Pond.

He learned more about the BPTC, first established in 1883, when he read the book

Otten looks back on another season when the BoSox almost ...

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Boston Red Sox co-owner Les Otten was emotionally drained as he watched Aaron Boone's 11th-inning home run at Yankee Stadium end his team's season in Game 7 of the American League Championship Series.

"Right then, the intensity of the last three years of baseball, of constant baseball, came crashing down," Otten said. "It was one of the greatest emotional lows that I have had that didn't have anything to do with life or death."

But the former ski resort mogul is looking ahead to next season, and already is working on projects aimed at making the team and Fenway Park more inviting. He is keeping his concepts under wraps, saying that they await approval of the other owners and administrators who run the team.

Otten, former owner of Sunday River Ski Resort in Newry and CEO of the American Skiing Co., became a Red Sox owner in early 2001, after the Yawkey Foundation put the club up for sale. He helped put together the group of investors who would buy the team for more than $600 million.

Once the deal was completed, Otten went from business-plan designer to idea man, a job that he admits is difficult to describe.

"As an owner, I can spend as much or as little time as I want with the team. I can spend as much time as I want generating ideas that I can give to management."

The administration, including CEO Larry Lucchino and General Manager Theo Epstein, may or may not accept the ideas.

Even before the sale, Otten helped nurture ideas that would later prove popular, such as the addition of the Green Monster seats atop Fenway Park's left field wall.

Other changes included the introduction of new vendors to the park and the game-day closing of Yawkey Way, the street outside the park's main entrances.

The best part of being a baseball owner is being able to participate as a fan — with privileges, Otten said.

"If you love baseball as wicked bad as I do, it gives you access," he said. "It doesn't give you power; it gives you access."

He can travel with the team, fly on their plane and stay in their hotels. He's become friends with many of the players: Todd Walker, Kevin Millar, Derek Lowe and others. Before games, he'd play catch with third base coach Mike Cuddage.

BE THERE FOR VETERANS

To the Editor:

We all know that Nov. 11 is Veterans Day. We know that Veterans Day pays tribute to men and women who sacrificed for freedom in the U.S. Armed Forces. We know that democracy flourishes the world over because of the sacrifice of America's veterans. We know that the Veterans Day originates from the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month when World War I ended.

Our nation praises its veterans with a holiday, with the construction of moving memorials, and with a solemn final tribute; placement upon their coffins of a U.S. flag. Yet, as pro-veteran as the United States of America is, there are aspects of the relationship between our grateful nation and its veterans that most Americans probably do not know.

Did you know that, pending the enactment of key legislation, military retirees who suffer from disabilities related to their military service are taxed a dollar of their retired pay for every dollar they receive in disability compensation? Did you know that since the Berlin Wall was dismantled, signaling America's victory in the Cold War, the U.S. Armed Forces have experienced a one-third cut in the active duty force and a 300 percent increase in deployments? Did you know that on a given night, about a quarter-million veterans are homeless? Did you know that, until last month, when wounded troops departed military hospitals, they received a bill for their meals? Did you know that the families of thousands of Guard and Reserve personnel lost their health insurance while their loved ones fight the war on terror?

Veterans number 25 million, not even a tenth of the U.S. population. Nevertheless, we are reminded daily that veterans comprise a brave and selfless fraction that has helped to deter and to avenge tyranny.

Veterans have fought for you and for all — to advance the cause of liberty. Circumstances suggest that America's veterans need the American people to stick up for their causes.

The veteran will be there for you.

Water District Q & As

will return next week

Note: The questions below (bold) regarding the Bethel Water District's proposed rate increase were submittee to the district by The Citizer in late September, and the answers were provided by the district trustees at last month's public hearing on the rate increase.

The BWD trustees and their rate increase consultant, Gordon F. LaBay of Portland, offer the following answers to the editor's twenty-eight questions. We look forward to expanding on these answers and to responding to other questions that may arise during the public hearing.

- 1) When did the trustees make the decision to seek a rate increase? What was the vote? Is a copy of those minutes available? During the early summer, at its June and July monthly meetings, the trustees met with and received a confirming report from its financial consultant, Mr. LaBay, that BWD's current operating costs were rapidly out-stripping its income sources. Accordingly, the trustees asked Mr. LaBay to proceed with determining the size and case for a rate increase to stabilize the District's finances. In August, a proposed filing was received and submitted to the PUC for prospective action, subject to a public hearing (now set for October 21, 2003). It is anticipated that the trustees will formally vote to proceed with the rate increase process at its regular monthly meeting following the public hearing.
- 2) How many people are served by the water district? About 1200 residential customers, using the formula that the number of bills x 2.5 persons is standard procedure. How many bills are sent out each quarter? The number of quarterly bills would be around 637 on average over the last four years. In recent quarters, BWD has mailed 419 bills to metered customers; 9, non-metered; 28, multi-residential; 138, commercial, and 11 to government agencies. There are also 26 fire protection accounts (25 private and one public)
- 3) When did the last rate increase go into effect (month and year)? April 1, 2000
- 4) What does the typical household in Bethel pay annually for water service? In percentage and absolute amounts, how much more can the typical household in Bethel expect to pay if the increase is approved? An average family would use 2100 cu ft of water per quarter. Currently, the quarterly cost is $61.35. This would go to $80.37, an increase of 31 %.
- 5) How much was Gordon LaBay paid to prepare the PUC filing? Mr. LaBay will not bill the District until the case is final. The filing is budgeted at a total of $3,000, which includes Mr. LaBay's professional services, preparation and printing of the filing, legal notices and letters, advertising, travel and miscellaneous expenses.
- 6) Under the new rate structure, what will be the total annual expenditure of the water district? The cash expenditure is projected to be $278,791. This excludes non-cash expense for depreciation and amortization of cost to issue bonds.
- 7) How much has the annual expenditure increased since the last rate increase? (1999) $185,467; (2002) $265,483. Resulting in an increase of $80,016.
- 8) How does that increase break down? In other words, what is driving the increase and in what specific amounts?

	1999*	2002	Increase	%
Operations & Maintenance	$169,880	$208,360	$38,480	22.6%
Taxes and Regulatory Fees	2,451	12,788	10,377	421.0
Debt Service	13,136	44,335	31,199	237.5
TOTAL	$185,467	$265,483	$80,016	43.2%

* BWD had only two full-time employees during calendar 1999.

- 9) The PUC filing attributes part of the need for an increase to increased costs in mandated testing and treatment chemicals. How much, in absolute and percentage terms, are these increases since the time of the last rate increase?

	1999	2002	Increase	%
Lab Testing and Chemicals	$3,429	$5,580	$2,151	62.7%

- 10) With the coming increase of approximately 31% and that percentage divided over the four years since the last increase, it appears that the rates are increasing 7.75% per year. Is this an accurate statement? The percentage would vary by year, but an accurate "average" over the actual 3.75 years since the last rate increase is 8.27%.
- 11) Why has not the increase in customers and total volume of water sold over the past four years created additional operating funds for the water district without a rate increase?

	1999	2002
Number of customers	463	463
Water sold - gallons	39,760,000	44,686,000
Metered Sales	$123,441	$152,454

[Rate case increase was 21.1% of the 23.5% above]

- 12) Does the water district have a 5-year rate forecast? No, rate increases are sought on an "as-needed" basis.
- 13) Is any portion of the rate increase attributable to capital improvements in the water system? Depreciation on new additions, estimated at $1,817. The increase in Debt Service includes purchase of new truck. (See Page 7 of filing.)
- 14) Are there any capital improvements on the horizon that will lead to future rate increases? If so, what are they? Yes. BWD is currently looking to an additional water source and at system improvements to help meet future water demand. As now envisioned, this program, developed in 2001, will involve four phases. Phase I, estimated at a cost of $105,000, will be to find an additional water source that can produce 300 gpm or more. Phase II would be to build a new-source pumping facility at a projected cost of $575,000. Phase III will replace the 8-inch water main crossing Androscoggin River with a 12-inch main for an estimated $198,000. Phase IV would remove all "bottle-necks" in the transmission mains and the replacement of the entire, original 1890's 8-inch cast iron main running from the District's water treatment facility to the new River crossing with 12-inch ductile iron pipe, at an estimated cost of $782,000.
- 15) In early 2002 the town released approximately $40,000 to the water district. These were grant funds intended for source development. Have test wells been drilled? If so, what were the results? Where do we go from here? One test well has been drilled on BWD property. Unfortunately, the test well did not produce sufficient water for production. The District is discussing purchase and sale agreements with landowners of potential sites that may be suitable for source development. Following successful negotiations, test drilling will begin anew.
- 16) Outside of these grant funds, has the district made other money available for source development? No, none available. Does the rate increase include money for source development? No.
- 17 and 18) Does the water district charge some kind of impact or source enhancement fee? Do all new customers pay this fee? How is it calculated? An Aug. 5, 2003, letter to the district from the PUC states: "We continue to suggest that the district consider the adoption of a System Development Charge that would incorporate source enhancement charges." Please comment. BWD has charged a source enhancement fee for water main extensions only. There has been no charge for additions to the existing transmission system. Mr. LaBay has just recently completed calculations for a "System Development Charge" and forwarded them to A.E. Hodsdon, consulting engineers, of Waterville for review. Mr. LaBay and a Hodsdon staff engineer will meet soon to complete the required tariff sheet that will be filed with the PUC. It will be the PUC staff that will approve or reject the filing.
- 19) How many full-time employees work for the water district? How many part-time employees? How much overtime is budgeted year to year? BWD employs three full-time and two part-time employees. Overtime is budgeted at $3,404 for this year.
- 20) Who are the part-time employees, by name? How much was paid to each in the past 12-month period? Tina Roberge, transporter, was paid $1,811 over the last 12 months. Mico Thompson, transporter and laborer, was paid $1,646 over the last 12 months. Note: Ms. Roberge and Mr. Thompson are the spouse and stepson of the Superintendent, respectively.
- 21) What does the water district offer its employees in terms of benefits? What is the annual cost per employee? Are employees required to pay for a portion of their benefits? (Please see the Appended Chart for a breakdown of benefits for full-time employees.) Part-time employees have no benefits. Employees receiving benefits pay for life insurance. The District does not offer retirement benefits to its employees. The Superintendent is not allowed to hold a second job and must be totally available to the District.
- 22) Under the new rate structure, how much of the annual expenditure will be supported by customer billing? (See Page 2 of the filing.) $304,767. Presumably the rest is supported by non-water services. How much does that amount to and what are the revenue sources? (See Page 1 of the filing.) Other Income - $12,200.
- 23) The PUC filing shows (Acct. 421) that the district received $6,532 in non-utility (timber harvesting) income this year and $12,636 in 2001. Do these amounts represent net payment to the water district from the contractor after road maintenance, road improvements and erosion control? For 2000 and 2001, the timber harvest contractor completed all road/bridge repairs as part of his financial responsibilities. For 2003, the District will pay for most of the watershed maintenance. The non-utility expenses include the professional forester's 15% fee that is applied against what BWD makes. The timber harvest contractor continues to be responsible for erosion control.
- 24) How much has the contractor compensated (by whatever manner) for such activities in each of the past three years? How much does the district expect to be charged next year? BWD is compensated, at a minimum, by the following formula: mill price of delivered timber, minus trucking costs, divided by two, OR, in accordance with the existing timber harvesting contract, whichever is higher.
- 25) How much timber volume has been harvest in each of the past 5 years, and how much is anticipated to be harvested next year? 1998 = 527 cords; 1999 = 282 cords; 2000 = 198 cords; 2001 = 440 cords; 2002 = 209 cords. For 2003, we anticipate plus/minus 200 cords.
- 26) Returning to the PUC filing: The Acct. 421 income projection for the coming year is only $2,000, and the filing states that one reason a rate increase is needed is that timber harvesting (and, presumably, the income it generates) "has been substantially reduced." Does this represent a change in district policy regarding wood harvesting? If so, why? And if this is a change in policy, is the change reflected in the district's minutes? BWD trustees have adopted the following stance on timber-harvesting in the Newry portion of the Chapman Brook watershed, the landholdings deeded by William Bingham 2d - that the harvest proceeds shall not exceed the sum of real estate taxes assessed by the Town of Newry and the costs associated with the maintenance of the limited watershed road system and the removal of diseased or damaged trees. The watershed road system and unhealthy tree removal are believed necessary to minimize the potential for forest fires and to preserve a healthy watershed and water source for our customers.
- 27) How are public fire protection charges paid by the town calculated? What is the basic principle? Were town officials consulted prior to the district's seeking a rate increase? (See Page 10 of the filing.) The calculation is required under Chapter 690 of PUC rules and regulations. The percentage, up to 30%, is applied to the Gross Revenue required.
- 28) The PUC filing refers to "the last implemented rate increase in 1999." Didn't that rate increase in fact go into effect in 2000? Yes. Year 1999 was the Test Year and the filing and hearing was done in that year. Rates could have been effective on January 19, 2000, but the actual date was April 1, 2000, to accommodate the next billing period.

MLT gets Alger farm easement

WOODSTOCK — Cornelia Greaves of Portland has donated the 140-acre General Alger Farm on Route 232 to the Maine Sea Coast Mission in Ellsworth. But before making the donation, Greaves donated a conservation easement on 130 acres of the farm to Mahosuc Land Trust. The farm, on both sides of Route 232, dates to 1786 and was locally known as the Cole Farm until General James D. Alger purchased the property in the 1940s. When he and his wife, Consuelo, passed away in the 1980s, Greaves, a cousin to General Alger, inherited the property. The Alger farm is important, according to MLT, because of its historical value, farm soils of statewide importance, forestland available for habitat and timber harvesting, and open space/scenic values. The Maine Sea Coast Mission plans to sell the property on the open market. The proceeds from the sale will go to benefit MSCM programs.

Gordon gets five years

PORTLAND — Peter Gordon of Greenwood was sentenced in U.S. District Court last week to serve five years and three months in prison. Gordon pled guilty in July to being a felon in possession of a firearm. After he gets out of prison, he must then serve three years of supervised release. Gordon's property was raided in April by law enforcement officials. They found about three dozen guns, as well as a pound of marijuana and drug paraphernalia. Gordon had been convicted in 1986 of selling marijuana.

Driver training for rescuers

BETHEL — Thirteen members of area rescue squads participated in a recent A.V.O.C. class on safe driving. Participants completed four hours of classroom time at the Bethel Ambulance Station, followed by four hours of driving time at Sunday River's Lot 5. Instructor Ham Robbins taught the laws related to driving an ambulance, vehicle safety, defensive driving techniques, how to choose a safe place to park at the scene of an ambulance call, and the importance of vehicle familiarity. Taking part from Bethel were Jeanne Boelsma, Mary Buckman, Eric Cheney, Beth Frisbie, Randy Grondin, Amy Hanscom, Harold Herschlag, Robert Hopper, David Pratt and Kevin Saisi. Those attending from Tri Town were Brian Elliott, Erik Poland and Jimmy Wisser. All participants will receive an A.V.O.C. certificate.

Blood drive at Gould

BETHEL — Gould Academy will host its annual Blood Drive Nov. 14 from 1 to 5 p.m. in the Bingham Gym. Donors must be in good health, weigh at least 110 pounds and must be 18 years of age or over (17 with a signed American Red Cross parental/guardian consent form). Although walk-in donors are welcome, appointments are preferred and can be made by calling the Gould Academy Health Center at 824-7733. Those who cannot donate blood but wish to volunteer at the blood drive should also contact the Health Center. The goal for the Bethel community drive is 85 pints.

Mason sentenced to prison

AUBURN — Joshua Mason, 19, of West Paris was sentenced to one year in prison for killing his best friend in a car accident last year. Mason was sentenced in Androscoggin County Superior Court Friday. Police say Mason was speeding down Lane Road in Mechanic Falls in August of 2002 when he lost control of his truck, and it rolled over and landed in a ditch. Eighteen-year-old Travis Van Durme, an Oxford Hills football star, was killed. Before the judge handed out the sentence, Mason read a statement to Van Durme's family. "I am very sorry for what I have taken away from you," he said. The family, however, said the one-year sentence is a slap on the wrist, especially since Mason already had two convictions for driving to endanger before the accident. But Travis' mother, Bonnie Van Durme said she forgave Mason. Along with the one-year sentence, the judge also ordered Mason to be on probation for six years, during which time he will not be allowed to drive.

Council to buy C.B. Cummings

NORWAY — The Growth Council of Oxford Hills will buy the C.B. Cummings and Sons sawmill property. The mill was operated by the Cummings family for 142 years until it closed last year. The Growth Council will pay $100,000 for the property and buildings, located in the downtown area. The price is one-quarter of an earlier asking price of $400,000. The council plans to hold several public brainstorming sessions to discuss possible future uses for the site.

New lodge for Black Mountain

RUMFORD — The 40-year-old ski lodge at Black Mountain will be removed next spring and a new one built in its place, following a decision by the Maine Winter Sports Center. The new lodge is part of several planned improvements for the ski area, including additional trails and lifts.

Number of 911 calls up

PARIS — More people are dialing 911 than in the past, according to Dan Schorr, Oxford County director of communications. Calls are up 48 percent in the past three years — from 14,678 to 21,787 annual calls. He said more people are calling for an ambulance in a non-life-threatening medical emergency situation. Schorr will ask for $23,000 more in his budget this year to increase the hours of dispatchers, in order to handle the calls.

CommonDrum at Fair Share

NORWAY — The percussion group "CommonDrum" will perform at the Fair Share Commons (447 Main Street), Saturday, November 15, at 7 p.m. The group features drums and hand percussion instruments from around the world: Mexico, Bali, Cuba, The Congo, Nigeria, Mali, Florida, and even Andover, Maine. Members of CommonDrum include Jan Kubiac of Albany, Alan Day of South Paris, and Maya Best of Locke Mills.

Benefit for Jones family

GREENWOOD — A benefit supper and dance for the Richard Jones family will take place Nov. 11 beginning at 5:30 p.m. at the Locke Mills Legion Hall on the Gore Road. The family lost their North Waterford home and barn in a recent fire. The meal will be followed by dancing until 9:30 p.m. The event is sponsored by the Greenwood Historical Society, Parisians and Richard Felt bands, and the Locke Mills Legion and Auxiliary. There will be raffles, door prizes, etc. The cost is $6. Additional donations will be accepted.

A graduate of the University of Maine and Texas A&M University, Vincent taught for many years in Texas before retiring to Bethel in 1992. His specialization in geology includes paleoecology and sedimentary environments.

Professor Vincent will speak in Trustees Auditorium in the McLaughlin Science Center on the Gould Academy campus at 7 p.m. The program is open to nonmembers, is free of charge, and is handicapped accessible. For more information, contact the Land Trust office at 824-3806.

Future MLT Local Knowledge programs:

CRAFT FAIR A SUCCESS

Lucia B. Owen

To the Editor:

The 18th Crescent Park School Craft Fair has come and gone, and once again it proved to be very successful. All of this year's proceeds were added to an activity fund earmarked for such things as a new sound system for the school, computer software programs, and science materials. This year the students were able to see their fundraising efforts pay off when the school recently purchased a network color printer. Science shows and other performances are also funded through the monies earned during the fair.

As we are both keenly aware, the success of this event was brought to full fruition through the tireless efforts of so many people dedicated to the students, the school, and the community. Thank you to all of the students, the teachers, the kitchen and custodial staff at Crescent Park, and the gentlemen at the bus garage. For your time, talents and pure labor that were offered, we are so grateful. To the endless number of volunteers, the parents of these creative students, and to the crafters, we thank you. To Sheri Head, who took on the chore of soliciting raffle items, and to all the local merchants who contributed to this year's raffle: Viewer's Choice Video, Ruthie's, Western Maine Supply, Books and Things, Kowloon Village Restaurant, Peterson's Pet Stop, Irving Mainway, Key Bank, Good Food Store, Pat's Pizza, Glidden's Foodliner, Rite Aid, Timeless Treasures, Bethel Citizen, Country Sampler, Telstar Video, Designs, and Maine Line Products — many, many thanks for your continued support.

A very special thank you to Brenda Wight, Nancy Young, Diana Witt and Rick Colpitts who helped carry the torch from the fair in years past to this year's event.

As always, thank you to the community of Bethel and all who attended. Your support, interest, and commitment to our schools are forever appreciated.

During the last part of a season that he says was extraordinary, Otten was there the whole way.

"I ate, lived and slept the last 40 days of the season every step of the way," he said. "I went everywhere, because you can."

Grady Little came under criticism for leaving pitching ace Pedro Martinez in Game 7 too long, and Otten said he agreed with the team's decision to release Little as manager.

"Grady managed that night the way he did all year, based on his gut, his knowledge of baseball," Otten said. "The general manager is building a farm system and a statistical system and a management style, which you want the field manager to agree on wholeheartedly."

"We can provide useful information to our coaches, managers and scouts, better information than anybody in baseball," Otten said, but Little wasn't using it.

"The bottom line: It's great to be good guys and have a lot of love. You have to have that. But you have to have one more thing," Otten said. "You need a World Series title in Boston."

Voting

Voters, however, opted 619-516 to go ahead with the project.

Statewide balloting

Like their peers statewide, local voters replied with a resounding "no" to the proposal to build an Indian casino in Maine.

Seventy percent of voters here opted against the proposal, while statewide 66 percent of Mainers voted against it (statewide results are still preliminary).

Unsurprisingly the largest opposition here was in Albany Township, once the proposed site of a high-stakes

Indian bingo hall. Voters in Albany rejected the latest Indian gambling plan 160 to 27, a margin of more than five to one.

But while voters statewide approved (54 to 46 percent) a measure to allow video slot machines at certain race tracks, voters here narrowly (49.4 to 50.4 percent) disapproved of the measure.

Voters here joined their peers statewide in approving three bond issues, totaling more than $89 million.

On Question 1, the School Finance and Tax Reform Act, both groups narrowly favored Option 1, the "Citizen Initiative." However, since the option received only 37 percent of the total votes cast, it must go back to voters before June, for an up or down vote on it.

In another vote of local interest, voters in SAD17 overwhelmingly approved using unrestricted funds to purchase land for a new Paris elementary school.

The measure was approved 313-186 in West Paris, and 419-211 in Waterford. District-wide it passed 5,715-2,287.

Crank

"Everything Happened Around the Switchboard," by Michael Hathaway. Hathaway is the son of Elden and Barbara Hathaway, who ran the phone company from 1951 until it shut down in 1983.

"From there, I launched into what I needed to do (for a documentary)," he said. "I thought people across the country would be interested in it," he said.

Young pitched his idea to the Maine Public Broadcasting System, which approved it under the title "Bryant Pond Telephone Company: The Last Magneto System."

The film, Young said, will not only take an in-depth look at the phone system and its history, but the community that depended on it for so many years.

"It's about the Bryant Pond Telephone Company, but it's also about small-town America," he said.

To tell the story, the documentary will blend interviews filmed by Young, news video from the past, video of Bryant Pond and Greenwood, and still photos over a wide range of the 20th century.

Many anecdotes

Young did much of the work this past summer. He interviewed about 20 people, ranging from members of the Hathaway family to people who played more subtle roles, like part-time phone lineman Blaine Mills of Greenwood.

Mills provides anecdotes, many of them humorous, about the challenges of maintaining the lines and equipment for BPTC.

"I have anecdotes from everyone," said Young.

He also talked with a half dozen former switchboard operators, who worked the board from the Hathaways' living room on Rumford Avenue. Among topics covered: emergencies handled over the phone, and unusual requests of the operators.

Young's interview with each person lasted about an hour. He would let the camera roll as the interviewee spontaneously recalled incidents and people.

In addition to taping, said Young, "I was able to just sit down and talk with people for long periods of time."

The film will include aerial video of Bryant Pond that he took from a float plane, along with views of the Fryeburg Fair Museum (where "artifacts" of the company are now kept), the Maine State Museum (where the last switchboard is located) and the Museum of Telephony in Ellsworth (where a functioning magneto system will demonstrate how the BP system worked).

Young is also gathering between 200 and 300 old photos, many of them from the Woodstock Historical Society. From those, he will choose a selection to provide the historical context in which the phone company operated.

Young said he hopes to keep the narration in the film to a minimum. "I want the people to tell the story themselves," he said. "The rural characters are what make it interesting, more than anything else."

He plans to start the editing phase after Thanksgiving. He doesn't know yet whether the documentary will be a half hour or an hour long. It will be broadcast sometime next year by Maine PBS.

After that, "Ideally I can go national with it," Young said. He also hopes to distribute it for use as an educational resource.

And, he said, there's a good chance that eventually an expanded version of the film will wind up on DVD, available to local fans of the crank system.

Want to help?

As an independent producer, Young must find his own financing for his projects. Contributors for this one so far include the telephone associations of Maine and New England, and the Independent Telecommunications Pioneer Association. The town of Woodstock has also made a contribution.

Young would be appreciative of any other financial support from people in the area interested in the project. He may be reached at 824-8880 or at 14 Main Street in Bethel.

things to entertain them.

One day he might draw a large face on paper and hold it in the window. There was the time, for example, when Lance lost his first tooth. A drawing of a boy's face — minus the tooth — appeared in the window.

Another time Roger appeared with deer antlers on his head.

Then there were days with a teddy bear in a model of NASCAR racer Jeff Gordon's car, and a rope strung along the top of the window with toy monkeys hanging from it.

He also holds up signs. "Back to School" appeared at the beginning of the year. Another time, the day before a family wedding, a teddy bear appeared in a tuxedo with a sign "Going to a wedding."

Does Roger lie awake at night trying to think of what to do in the morning?

"No. Something usually comes to me first thing in the morning, or the night before," he said.

There's always Bandi, the miniature Doberman, who can be held up to the window for a wave at a moment's notice.

There was a morning of panic recently when Roger, sitting at the kitchen table next to the window, was so engrossed in reading the newspaper and eating breakfast that he didn't even see the bus come and go.

But the kids saw him reading the paper — and liked it. "They thought that was what he was doing (for his act)," said Blaisdell.

And it's not just Roger doing the entertaining. Sometimes the children, with Blaisdell's help, put on their own display.

"Retaliation, I guess you could call it," said Roger.

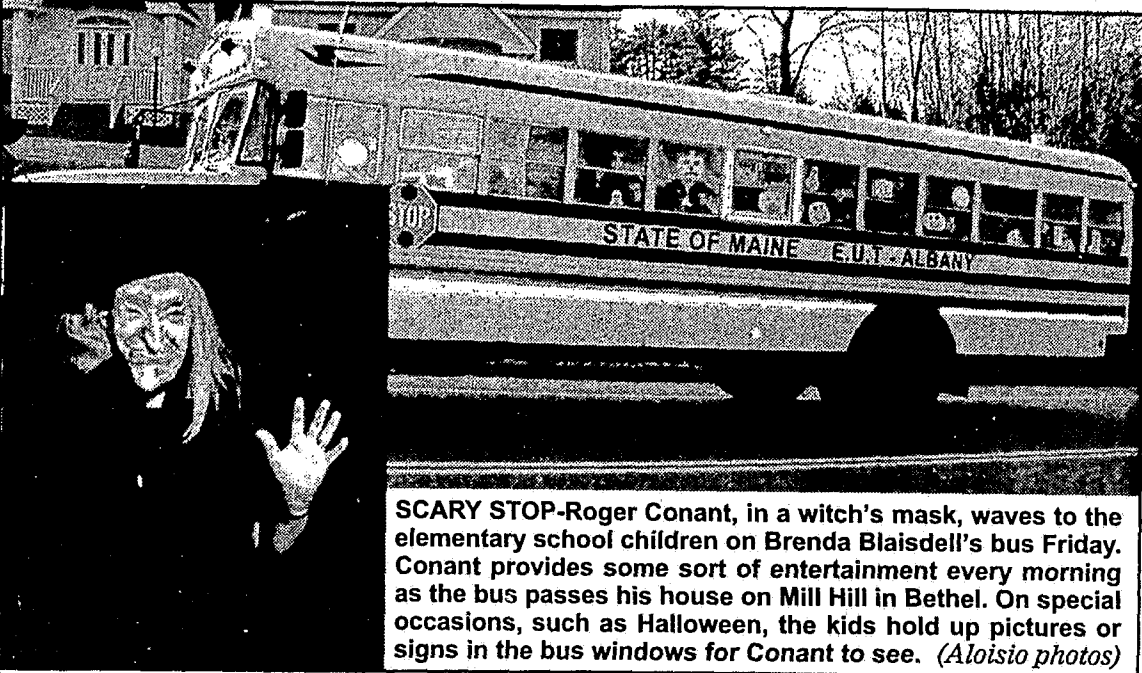

One day last week was Roger's birthday. "We used paper plates and put one letter of 'Happy Birthday' on each one, and held them up to the windows," said Blaisdell.

And last Friday, on Halloween, the kids held up drawings of jack 'o lanterns and signs reading, "Boo!"

Roger responded with a wave — from behind his witch's mask.

The witch in the window was also a farewell, at least for a short time. Every November, Roger spends the month at his wilderness hunting camp.

It will give the kids time to ponder whether a Pilgrim or a turkey — or something completely unexpected — will greet them at Thanksgiving.

SCARY STOP-Roger Conant, in a witch's mask, waves to the elementary school children on Brenda Blaisdell's bus Friday. Conant provides some sort of entertainment every morning as the bus passes his house on Mill Hill in Bethel. On special occasions, such as Halloween, the kids hold up pictures or signs in the bus windows for Conant to see. (Aloisia photos)

Every morning the ground and car windshields are white with frost. The neighbors are scraping at the frost to clear enough space to see the road and cars to get to their jobs. Us lucky ones that have a garage just open the door and go about our business with no added effort.

The rain we have been receiving has filled the brooks and rivers but there is no flooding in my area. All wells should be filled by now. We are all thankful that it wasn't snow or we would have been buried for the winter.

Saturday, Nov. 1, began the annual trek to Christmas craft fairs. Sue Nelson, Liz Stanczyk and yours truly left early in the a.m. for the Extension Fair in Dixfield. Although we were far too early, we trudged on to several other fairs. The "Green" Church in Mexico had a large sign designating a fair, but no date. We always stop there for freshly squeezed apple cider, so we will all have to return on the correct date.

Midway toward Bethel we stopped at Rumford Point to pay our respects to Huckleberry Corner Crafts. It was a potpourri of goodies. To our surprise, we found out that

by Sharon Bouchard

Sharon Bouchard's column is published by special arrangement with the Advertising Department of this newspaper.

Does anyone know what day it is? I know, it's Thursday and it's also November 6th, but it's also a very special day for the men. Any ideas? Give up? Today is "National Men Make Dinner" Day.

I was quite stunned to learn that such a day exists. I don't know how long it's been celebrated and I don't think Hallmark produces any cards to commemorate it, but there really is such a day and it is the first Thursday of November. There is even a website devoted to this special day: www.menmakingdinnerday.com. Isn't that amazing.

This won't be a day of celebration in my house. Due to Henry's disabilities he is unable to cook and even without disabilities, he can't cook. Well, I guess I should be fair to him; home fries and cinnamon toast were two foods that he actually could make a lot better than I. However, a meal of home fries and cinnamon toast just don't excite my sense of haute cuisine.

So there will be no man making dinner for me tonight, but I do hope that a lot of other men will step up to the plate, dinner plate that is, and fill it with something delicious for their family.

There are some rules regarding Men Make Dinner Day that they should be aware of and I feel that it is my civic duty to fill them in. There certainly would be nothing wrong with the ladies of the house to cut these rules out and post them where the little man will be sure to see them.

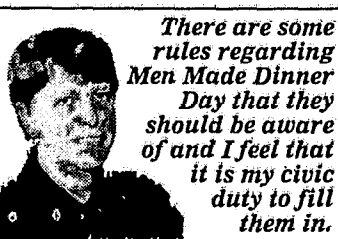

RULE #1 - National Men Make Dinner Day will be celebrated on the first Thursday of November.

RULE #2 - Man agrees to participate in National Men Make Dinner Day. Bonus points if he does so without seeking promises of night out with boys in return.

RULE #3 - Man, completely unaided, chooses a published recipe from any source, or Internet. Getting the recipe from "her" cookbooks is allowed, but man gets bonus points if the recipe isn't already in house. (I personally wouldn't care where he got it as long as it was good food).

RULE #4 - Main meal must include a minimum of 4 ingredients and require a least one cooking utensil other than fork. (Most men can use every pot and pan in the house for only two ingredients).

RULE #5 - Man goes shopping for "all" ingredients. Bonus points if he takes inventory of cupboards and fridge before shopping trip so you don't end up with two 64 oz. jars of pickled pimentos.

There are some rules regarding Men Make Dinner Day that they should be aware of and I feel that it is my civic duty to fill them in.

RULE #6 - Man organizes all necessary ingredients in order of importance on kitchen counter. At this point, he may need to make a phone call or shout out "honey" followed by a question. This is not allowed. (I think Henry's first questions would be where's the stove?)

RULE #7 - Man may, if desired, turn on radio or his favorite CD. Man agrees not to be within 30 feet of TV remote during the cooking process. At this point spouse and any other family members should not be anywhere near the kitchen unless the smoke detector goes off. (I think there could be some serious separation anxiety with the remote at least 30 feet away).

RULE #8 - Follow recipe carefully, man starts to cook dinner! Apron is optional, tool belt is not allowed. Bonus points if recipe includes one of the following: capers, saffron, or the word scaloppini. (I don't even know the use of capers or saffron).

RULE #9 - Man must use the "clean as he goes along" rule! Following each completed use of utensils, cookware, half-used jars of anything, spice bottles, etc., everything is rinsed, cleaned and put away. (Now, this I would like to see!)

RULE #10 - Man sets table, candles are lit, beverages are poured, no ketchup bottles, sour cream containers or big boxes of salt or table. (I like the ketchup bottle on the table; bonus points here.)

RULE #11 - Spouse and/or family members are served. This is an opportune time for a photo. Man is allowed to gloat no more than three times during the meal. Family is encouraged to congratulate man on job well done. Family dog is not allowed to be secretly fed man's cooking. (You bet your bippy I'd be taking a photo.)

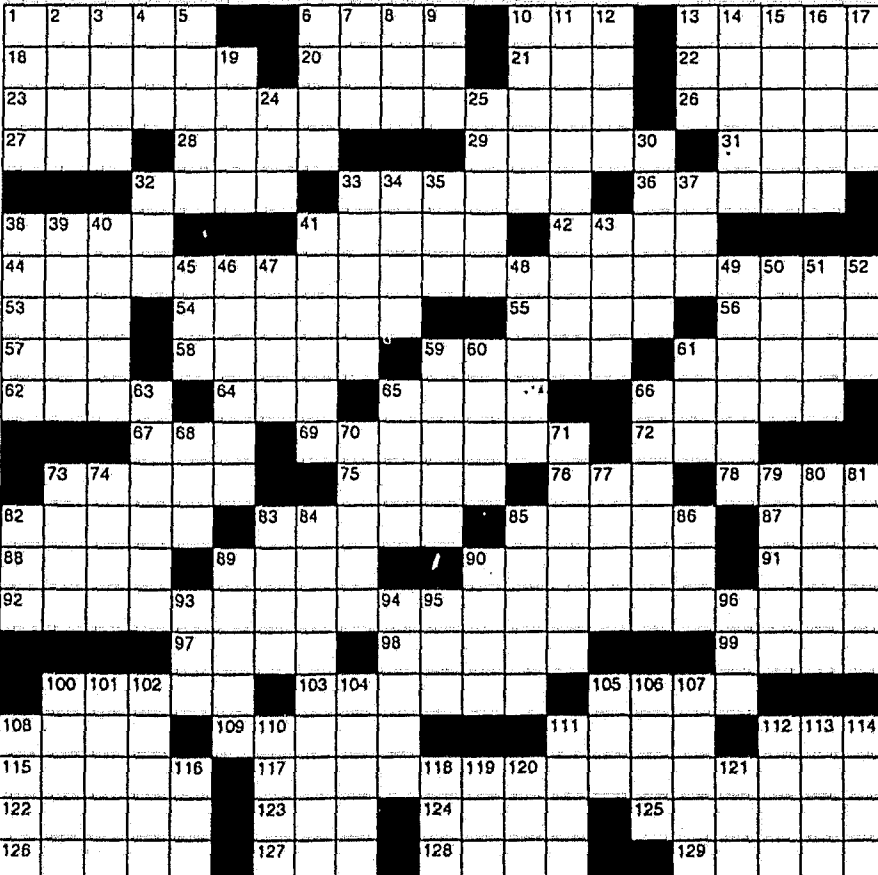

RULE #12 - After meal, table is cleared by man, dishwasher is loaded. Man returns to table for stimulating after-dinner conversation. At this point, man is told how much his meal is appreciated. He, in turn, describes the joys and challenges of the experience. He is given a hug, and his TV remote is returned to him. (Forget the dishwasher, hand wash the darn dishes and after describing the joys and challenges how about an admission that man now has a clue what woman goes through every night!)

Those are the rules and I sincerely hope that many men make their families dinner tonight and I sincerely hope that those families applaud the man's efforts. The way I see it National Men Makes Dinner Day is a really good day to celebrate, but maybe in all fairness there should also be National Woman Changes Oil Day.

Someone must have had fun plowing into a flock of turkeys on Oct. 29. There were two bodies near Peter Haines' residence that morning. There is also headlight glass alongside the road. What I don't understand is: What was to be gained by plowing into them? We have enjoyed watching this flock all summer, even people on the road kept an eye out for them.

Alder River Grange will have its last supper on Nov. 8 at 5 p.m. This is the Turkey Supper with all the fixings. Adults will be $5, under 13 will be $3, and veterans will have a free supper.

Alder River Grange will have a regular meeting on Nov. 14, with a potluck supper at 6:30 p.m. and the meeting at 7:30 p.m.

Esther Wilson and Grace Gibson visited Theresa Gibson in Yonkers, N.Y., from Oct. 22 to 26. They also took a grand tour of New York City.

Doug Honkala of Maryland is visiting Rudi and Barbara Honkala for a week. Everyone has been a big help to Barbara and got their place ready for winter.

Rudi Honkala is now in Room 35 at Market Square in South Paris. He starts the heavy-duty rehab now.

Dana Jackson is at the Veterans' Home in South Paris for rehab.

I see the November road riding has begun.

Have a nice week. God Bless America.

Albany

by Dana & Sheila Dyke

Greetings and hello from Albany Township. We hope that the kids had fun last Friday. Sheila watched the Crescent Park parade from Main Street Friday afternoon, and got some pictures of the kids as they marched by, waving and smiling (probably thinking of the goodies back at school). That night, we only got one child at our place — not sure he was too thrilled with the apple we gave him. We don't trick or treat, so instead took the kids out for something to eat, and then bowling, and then we rented movies and watched family movies that night (oh, we did get a bag of candy, too.). We all had a wonderful "family time" Friday evening. Haven't seen any remains of pumpkins on the roads, so, am guessing that perhaps the usual shenanigans of young people were put on hold this year. We usually hear about someone's pumpkin or scarecrow being moved or smashed, but, nothing so far this time.

David was invited to a friend's birthday party on Saturday (McKenzie Blake, one of his classmates) at the BIG Adventure Center. The kids all seemed to have a great time, and we appreciate McKenzie's parents taking the time and effort to make such a special day for all of the kids. Happy Birthday, McKenzie.

We hope that everyone was able to get out and vote on Tuesday. There were some very emotionally charged issues on the ballot this year. Listening to others talk, it was rather reminiscent of the casino issue here in Albany a couple of years ago.

Best wishes for a happy and safe week. God Bless.

The Greenwood Fire Department Auxiliary met Monday evening, Oct. 20, at the Fire Station to discuss the burn to take place on Sunday, Oct. 26, and the Christmas Craft Fair that will be held at the Town Hall on Saturday, Nov. 8, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Tables will be $10 this year, and anyone wishing a table can call Veronica Penley at 875-2168 or Denise Swan at 875-2102. Having the Craft Fair at the Town Hall this year is a departure from previous years when it was held at the Fire Station. Hopefully having it on the Main Street will make it easier for shoppers. The auxiliary is raffling off a Thanksgiving Basket to raise some money for the Fire Relief Fund and if you would like some and nobody gets to you they are available from almost any auxiliary member and will be available at the Craft Fair.

The drawing will be held Nov. 15.

Jon Smith from Easton, Maine, visited his mother-in-law, Lorraine Larson, and Ralph and Lorene Mills, Sunday afternoon. He was in the area for the weekend attending a couple meetings in Augusta in connection with his work in the Psychiatric Department of the Fort Fairfield Hospital. Unfortunately, Marcia could not come with him because she could not get off work on Monday and he had a meeting on Monday. I talked with Marcia on the phone and she said it was her first time staying alone in the house they just bought and she was a little more uneasy than she would have been in Presque Isle but that she was sure she would get through the time just fine. I am sure she did, too, because once she makes up her mind to do something she will follow through. We were glad to see him, because we hadn't seen him in over a year and he had never seen Lorene.

We certainly have had some marvelous showers (I say showers because that is what the weatherman called the rain we had Wednesday. To me, it looked like more than showers, but what do I know?).

I had to go to Norway for a blood test, Wednesday. I got the results today and was rather annoyed that since I cut out all my eggs and went to nonfat cheese my cholesterol number had gone up, so I am going to have to take yet another pill, and I hate taking pills with a passion. The number is not too terribly high but not low enough for a person with diabetes. My sugar count has improved since I went to the seminar, so it was certainly worth my time. I guess one out of two is better than having no improvement at all.

I had to take Lucy to Dr. Stuer, Thursday. She would eat anything went suddenly to eating nothing and acting really strange earlier in the week and I had to take her to a vet she didn't know and didn't know her. She gave her an antibiotic and said to have her checked again when Dr. Stuer returned. He says her breathing is really strange and he took x-rays and nothing showed up, so I am to keep her on the antibiotic, which is making her feel somewhat better, until we get some other symptom to go on. Trouble is he is going to be gone and I envision another acute symptom when he is away. Anyhow, it is sad to see my exuberant Lucy so miserable and sick. She looks worried and I know I am and so is Dr. Stuer, but right now there's not much else we can do but wait.

Lorene Mills, Crystal Lake and Pastor Justin Thacker attended a Leader's Conference for the Assemblies of God in Sanford, Saturday. Ralph had to work so I headed out to the potluck supper at the Bethel Church of the Nazarene. They had services scheduled with Rev. Wally Staples and song evangelist, Bob Porter, and they were very good, as was the supper. Bob Porter also gave a concert on Sunday morning. He has a marvelous voice and sang many old and new favorites. We missed having Gerry Shimamura there, but she is gallivanting again, this time to Texas with her cousins, Florence and Alma Merrill. Her husband, Joe, is just as bad. He went the other way to Japan to visit his family there. I guess Jody and Julia must be keeping the home-fires burning, as I usually get Jake and this time I didn't. Or maybe they got tired of me spoiling him, as aunts are wont to do.

Greenwood City

Another month gone by and hunting season is here again. Doesn't seem possible this year is so near gone.

Ann Holt went down to see her aunt at South Paris.

David Holt of Norway and Ann Holt had dinner with their parents, Leonas and Fay Holt. Ann Holt has been working with Western Maine Academy at Woodstock. She was at Sunday River to a conference for the Department of Education.

Brad Payne and friend played golf at Bethel Inn one day.

Friday, being the Grandparents' Day at Woodstock

School, several of the grand- parents went up, Marie Kuva- ja, Jean Millett, Marie Curtis and myself. The children put on several little skits. It was fun to see them. We met Donna Stevens of Sumner. Her grandson is in school there. She used to work for us at the lunch counter when we had our store in Sumner. Always glad to see her.

Albert Curtis trimmed out the bushes that were growing up in my lilacs, so they look a lot better.

Lillian and Glenn Straight of Pownal and Karen and Gary Green of Freeport were up Saturday. They took a knitting machine I had down for my granddaughter to have, as I don't use it anymore, though they are nice to work with. You can make a lot of things with one.

Here's the quote of the week: "If you want your dreams to come true, don't oversleep."

Have a safe and happy week. Hunting will start. Hope everyone will be careful.

From the Oxford County Democrats

The Oxford County Democrats will meet on Thursday, Nov. 13, at Telstar Regional High School. There will be a potluck supper starting at 5:30 p.m. in Room 106, with attendees asked to bring a hot dish, salad or dessert to share. The business meeting will begin at 6:30.

County Democratic Chairperson Cathy Newell expects that the agenda will focus on preparation for the Feb. 8 Caucus Meetings including identifying convenors from each municipality for the meetings, and planning for locations that may include some regional groupings. Other business will include a report on the Governor's Night events held in October in Rumford, status of candidate recruitment, plans for the Acadian Night fundraiser scheduled for Friday, Nov. 21 at 5 p.m. at the Eagles Hall, a report on the completion of a busy season of festivals, fairs and business expos, and information from the 2004 Convention committees, including Platform. Senator Bruce Bryant, Representative John Patrick and Representative Rosita Gagne-Friel will report on the upcoming legislative session.

The Oxford County Democrats welcome all who share Democratic values to their meeting. Anyone who would like to be included in activities but who is unable to attend the meeting, may contact Cathy Newell at 875-2116, or cathynewell@mea.net.

Straw Poll Results
The Oxford County Democrats concluded their season of booths at various events throughout Oxford County with the Showcase at Oxford Hills on Oct. 25. The Free Raffle and Straw Poll attracted voters throughout the event. Vermont Gov. Howard Dean garnered 34 percent of the vote, followed by Gen. Wesley Clark with 24 percent, Sen. John Kerry with 15 percent, Sen. Joe Lieberman and Rep. Richard Gephardt tied at 9 percent, followed by former Sen. Carol Moseley-Braun and Rep. Dennis Kucinich tied at 3 percent, and Rev. Al Sharpton and Sen. John Edwards at 1 percent. Hank Burns was the winner of the raffle prize, which was a book and CD by the Capitol Steps.

From the Oxford County Republicans

David Heidrich, a junior at Oxford Hills High School, who spent eight weeks this summer in Washington, D.C., as a page for U.S. Senator Olympia J. Snow (R-Maine) was the featured speaker at the Oct. 14 meeting of the Oxford County Republican Committee. Terming this time in the nation's capital as he experience of a lifetime, the 16-year-old student provided some highlights of his summer, including his impression of some of the famous people he met during this time.

The meeting began with a 5:30 p.m. social hour and 6:30 p.m. supper followed by a business meeting, where Finance Chair Norm Ferguson announced that his fundraising for the party's effort in 2004 was progressing well.

Also occurring at this meeting was a mini-debate between two of the three Republican candidates expected to run in the Republican primary in the new Maine Senate District 13. Fryeburg attorney David Hastings and former State Representative Paul Waterhouse of Bridgton answered a number of questions about issues facing the state in the future including healthcare, the environment, and taxes. There appeared to be little disagreement between the two candidates. Another potential candidate for this seat is Caldwell Jackson of Oxford, who was unable to attend. Diane Jackson reported on U.S. Senator Olympia Snowe's recent activities. It was voted to hold the 2004 Lincoln Day dinner in February at El Dorado in South Paris.

The next meeting will be on Nov. 11 in Rumford Corner at the Masonic Hall. A 5:30 p.m. social hour will precede the dinner at 6:30 p.m. and business meeting. The speaker will be Scott Christianson, economic director for the River Valley Growth Council. All Oxford County Republicans are urged to attend.

From the Maine Veterans Home

The Maine Veterans' Home in South Paris is pleased to announce plans for the annual Veterans' Day ceremony. The annual event will take place on Sunday, Nov. 9, at the facility located at 477 High Street, at 2 p.m.

Guest speaker for the event will be Rosemary Lane, Maine State VFW Commander. Interestingly, Lane is the first female commander for the VFW. She is a retired military veteran who served in Viet Nam.

Pat Young, administrator of the 90-bed facility, will be Master of Ceremonies at the program. "We are always pleased to present this annual program — it is special not only to our veterans in this home, but for the many veterans in this community who deserve to be honored for their contributions to our nation," states Young. The colors will be presented by the Civil Air Patrol out of Rumford. The Reverend Melvin Young will offer a benediction. The public is invited and tours of the multi-level nursing facility will be available.

From the Bethel Philatelic Club

The club met on Oct. 28 at the Robinson House at 3 p.m., with one new person present. Welcome.

There were just two club members and the new person present with newspapers, albums and stock books to show what each of us had.

It was agreeable to all that for the next few months to meet at 2 p.m., as it gets dark sooner now. The next meeting will be on Nov. 25 at the Robinson House at 2 p.m.

Happy stamp collecting.

From the Telstar Alumni Association

The Telstar Alumni Association held its annual Halloween Costume Dance at the Locke Mills Legion Hall on Saturday, Nov. 1, with very good attendance. The attendees danced to the music of The Suspects, a golden oldies rock and roll band.

Many people arrived in costume and participated in the costume parade and contest held during the evening. The competition was tough, but judges Michelle Kennagh, Linda Buck and another judge (unknown) sorted through the assortment of costumes, that are better every year, and this year's were exceptional making decisions difficult.

Prize winners were as follows: David Bishop and Leighanne Cluff (Best Couple), Chad Bishop (Funniest), Debbie Luxton (Most Original), Anne Bishop (Scariest), Rosie Cross (Judges' Choice), and Ronnie and Sally Smith (Judges' Choice).

Many thanks to all the businesses who generously donated prizes including Sud's Pub, Millbrook Tavern, Crossroads Diner and Deli, Liam's Restaurant, Ruthies, Sunday River Ski Touring Center and Finish Line Pizza.

Also, thanks to Maine Line Products for selling tickets and to all Telstar Alumni Association members and friends for all their help in putting on another successful dance. We couldn't do it without you.

From the Jackson-Silver Auxiliary

The most recent activities of the Legion Auxiliary began with a going-away luncheon on July 10 for Mary Lyon, who would be moving from Ledgeview Living Center to a similar facility in Florida. Members of other organizations to which she belonged were invited and quite a number attended.

In August, the Red Cross Blood Drive on the 18th was a success, though not as good as last year. A few days later the annual family picnic was held.

Since then a sizable donation was made to the Women Veterans Expo, which was held at Togus on Sept. 27, and another to one of the Junior members who will be traveling with some other Telstar students to Spain and France in the spring.

On Oct. 14, the last supper/dance of the season was held with a very good attendance. It is hoped that these can be resumed in the spring.

Oct. 16 was the Boys and Girls State banquet. The boys who attended Boys State at the Maine Maritime Academy in Castine and the girls whose Girls State session was at Husson College were invited to attend with their families. Present were Ben Shimamura, Alyson Storck, Santana Wilson and Lindsey Farrington. Others had prior commitments and could not attend. Also present were the Girls State director, Nora Thombs, and her assistant, Caroleen Caldwell. The young people gave a good account of their experiences and what they had learned, doing their reports as a group. Ben reported already having registered to vote, having attained age 18. Santana had also been a member of her French class last spring, which traveled to France, and described how moving and emotional it was to visit Normandy and scenes of the battles there during WWII.

Again this year, the auxiliary is selling Christmas light bulbs for the trees at the Legion Hall grounds for $2 each. These are in memory of, or honor of, a veteran or a member of immediate family. Money received will be used for the good of veterans. Donations may be made through members of the auxiliary or sent to Jackson-Silver Auxiliary, P.O. Box 188, Greenwood, ME 04255.

The next meeting, on Nov. 6, will be preceded by the annual Membership Supper at 6 p.m. This is a good time for those who have not yet paid their dues to do so and to bring in new members.

There will be an observance of Veterans' Day, details not known at this time.

From the

Whitman

Memorial Library

Please join us on Thursday morning, Nov. 13, at 10 a.m.

when John Hathaway of Bryant Pond will be a guest at our library. Mr. Hathaway will be talking about antiques and encourages you to bring in old bottles or fruit jars for free appraisal. It might be fun to see if any of our old stuff is worth anything.

At our October board meeting we addressed a variety of items. Many of you may have received a letter from us telling you about what we are doing and requesting a donation of money. We want to expand our ability to purchase books and videos, and we are always thinking about other projects for the future.

Another order of business involves changing the side door to make access easier for people using the ramp and for adding a book drop to the door. We currently have a plastic box by the front door for returns when we are not open, but we need an indoor drop particularly for videos now that colder weather is approaching. This should be happening soon. The library continues to be used by other groups, and we are encouraging people to do so.

Our next official board meeting will be Jan. 29, 2004 at 3:30 p.m. at the library. These meetings are open to the public. We meet four times a year according to the by-laws, but other meetings are called when necessary.

Books new to our library this month are: "Reflections" by Barbara Bush; "Fried Green Tomatoes At The Whistlestop Cafe" by Fannie Flagg; "Close Your Eyes" by Kate Banks; "The Bridges Of Madison County" by Robert James Waller; "The Wedding" by Nicholas Sparks; "Relationship Rescue" and "The Ultimate Weight Solution" by Dr. Phil McGraw; Murad Sayen, "Maine The Home Place"; Pat Stuart, "Mollycoddett"; and Alice Arlen, "Maine's Sporting Camps." Also three books for young children are: "Never Fear A Snake, My Dear" by Rolf Siegenthaler and "Who Stole The Gold" by Udo Weigelt and "The English Roses" by Madonna.

The Whitman Memorial Library Book Discussion Group also enjoyed a trip going back in time with 88-year-old Lenwood "Pete" Andrews, as he related many humorous incidents and memories of years long past. It was like getting a glimpse of the early days when there was once a busy town in East Woodstock.

From the

Oxford Pomona Grange 2

This Pomona Grange has been meeting regularly, even though I have not been able to find the time and energy to write about it.

The June 3 meeting was held at Alder River Grange 145 for election of officers, all of which were elected to the same offices, except for the executive committee. Marion Morton replaced Betty Kerr.

On June 23, quite a number traveled to Wilson's Mills to Aziscoos Grange, not for a regular Pomona meeting, but to keep in touch with this Grange, which is so far from us that we have to go through part of New Hampshire to get there. State master, Steve Verrill, and his wife, State Flora, Sue, attended also.

Other meetings were on June 24, at Pleasant Valley 136, in West Bethel for Youth Night with members of the State Youth Grange holding offices; July 1 at Norway Grange 45 for History Night; Aug. 5 at West Paris Grange 298 for Community Service Night, where Emerson and Adeline Clough were honored, and Sept. 2 at Lakeside Grange 63 for the annual installation of the officers elected in June. State master, Steve Verrill, assisted by his installing team, performed the ceremony.

Oxford Pomona and Androscoggin Pomona have been working in conjunction with each other several times in the last year and several from this Pomona held office when we went to West Minot Grange on Sept. 21 to confer the four degrees on a class of candidates from the two counties. Included were several joining Oxford Grange 46. Most of these then came to Franklin Grange 124 in Bryant Pond on Oct. 7 to take the fifth or Pomona degree. At this meeting it was announced that Franklin Grange would be performing another Mock Hee Haw Show on Nov. 7. They have been doing this a couple of times a year for a while and the crowds seem to get bigger each time.

At least 16 Oxford Pomona members attended the State Grange Convention on Oct. 22-25 at Lewiston. This was besides those who had already taken the first five degrees and took the sixth, or State Grange degree, at this time. They plan to go on and take the National, or seventh, degree next month when the National Grange will be in Burlington, Vt.

From

REACH

It is with great pleasure that the Rape Education and Crisis Hotline (R.E.A.C.H.) announces the recent hiring of Jeanie Stone as the school-based educator. Jeanie's extensive experience in working with area youth will be an asset to the organization as well as to her as she works to present sexual violence prevention and awareness presentations to the schools.

Jeanie has a long history of contributing to the communities of Oxford Hills, including owning and operating the Jack and Jill Shoppe, a children's clothing business in Norway for 17 years. Over the past eight years, Jeanie has served as the Oxford Hills Respect team advisor, Y.E.S.S. advisor and Skate Park committee advisor. She has also led prevention programs including the successful programs for young women in Norway last spring and summer. The positive empowerment of youth to make a difference is evident in Jeanie's work.

The position of school-based educator is important in the work of prevention of sexual violence.

Bullying, teasing and harassment that is seen in the elementary grades is often the precursor to sexual harassment and sexual assault later on. It is hoped that by providing youth with information, resources and support, that we will see the tide turn against the perpetration of these crimes of violence.

R.E.A.C.H. was established in 1982 to provide support and advocacy to victims and survivors of sexual assault and sexual abuse. R.E.A.C.H. maintains a toll free 24-hour hotline (800) 871-7741.

Services that R.E.A.C.H. provides include support groups, accompaniment to medical exams, police interviews and court proceedings, community education and awareness as well as a lending library. For more information call the office at 743-9777.

ANSWERING YOUR QUESTIONS ABOUT HOSPICE CARE

"We knew about hospice, and you should too."

"Nothing more can be done to cure your father's illness," the doctor told us. But then he told us about hospice, and we learned that much more could be done for Dad. Dad is home with us now. Thanks to hospice, he's comfortable, spending time with his grandchildren and with us. We're sharing memories and making every moment count. But most of all, we're together — the way Dad wants it to be.

How is hospice care paid for?

In Maine, hospice care is covered by Medicare, MaineCare (Medicaid), and private insurance. This coverage includes all medical and support services related to the person's terminal illness. When a patient can no longer live at home and needs care in a facility like the Hospice House, "room and board" costs are generally not covered.

For patients who lack insurance for hospice care, AHCH relies on community support to offer subsidized care based on financial need. It is expected that some hospice house patients may need assistance with room and board costs. AHCH plans to create a permanent endowment to respond to this need.

Is hospice care widely used in Maine?

No. In a national study sponsored by the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, Maine was ranked forty-ninth of the fifty states in hospice utilization. Only 9.1% of Maine residents receive hospice care as compared to 23% of terminally ill patients in the United States. This is unfortunate because hospice care is considered the "gold standard" in end-of-life care and is the model for quality, compassionate care for terminally ill patients and their families.
